

Information about the entry exam in German

The entry exam in German consists of three parts and takes 60 minutes in total.

A. Cloze test.

You will be given 3 - 5 short texts with about 75 gaps for you to fill in.

For each gap you have to complete the missing half of the word correctly.
Any kind of error (also in spelling) means zero points for the gap.

Example: Meine Mut_____ ist no_____ nie i__ Deutschland gew_____.

Solution: Meine Mutter ist noch nie in Deutschland gewesen.

B. Test of sentence structures

You will be given 5 – 8 sentences, all of which are missing a part.
You have to complete each sentence correctly including the information given in parentheses and any other words that are grammatically necessary.

Beispiel: Er hat die Reise verschoben, denn _____
_____ (noch – Visum – warten).

Lösung: Er hat die Reise verschoben, denn er wartet noch auf sein Visum.
oder: ..., denn er muss noch auf sein Visum warten.

C. Reading comprehension test with multiple-choice questions

You should spend about 30 - 35 minutes on this part of the exam.

You will be given one or two texts (about 600 – 700 words in total) with eight to ten questions. For each question you have to choose and tick the one correct answer from several suggestions given (multiple choice).

Example with solution:

Worum geht es in dem Dokument, das Ihnen gerade vorliegt, hauptsächlich?

- All answers have to be written in permanent ink. Pencils and any other erasable pens are not permitted.
- Answers that are not clearly readable will not receive any points.
- Barring clause: If you achieve less than 41 percent in either of the three parts, the entire entry exam is failed. The evaluation of the exam stops at this point, the remaining parts will not be evaluated.
- Considering the fact that the final exam („Feststellungsprüfung“) represents level C1 of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages, approximately 600 to 800 hours of German classes (at the level B1+/B2 of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages) are usually sufficient to prepare for the entry exam in German.
- Samples from the entry exam can be found in the “Downloads“ section.
